

Lisa Becerra
Chief of Staff
Laborers Training School

Lisa has over 15 years of experience working with apprenticeship programs that are aimed at serving the underrepresented and marginalized. Her career with Laborers International Union of North America (LIUNA)/The Laborers Training School began as an administration personnel and transitioned into assisting key management staff with strategic planning, managing the quality of our services and training. The Laborers Training School is one of over 60 LIUNA training funds throughout the nation. In 2011, she led efforts in becoming an accredited training school by an independent body, International Accreditation Service, Inc. In 2016, She led efforts in achieving accreditation as curriculum developers. The Laborers Training School is one of two LIUNA training funds to be accredited. She believes that it is key to aim for continual improvement, which means we must always assess ourselves, seek feedback (good and bad), and make strides towards growth.