

Paul Barton works with business professionals who are going places and don't want public speaking to hold them back in their careers. Paul conducts workshops and personal coaching to give his clients the confidence to speak up and the skills to stand out. He's helped hundreds of people achieve their public speaking goals.

Paul knows what it takes to make a great business presentation. He led communication teams at six fast-growing Fortune 500 corporations including PetSmart, APS, Phelps Dodge Mining Company, America West Airlines, Hawaiian Airlines, and Avnet. Those experiences led him to write the No. 1 book on employee communication on Amazon. In addition to his own business, Paul teaches public speaking and communication courses at Estrella Mountain Community College. He's accredited by the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) and is a member of the National Speakers Association (NSA).